By securing large volume-based orders of merchandising stands for international companies Rocket Creative further demonstrated the suitability of their modular merchandising solutions in the global POS merchandising market.

With export orders to the likes of the UK, Asia and other African countries either completed or in process, these orders resoundingly prove the suitability of our modular display systems to the worldwide display market. In addition to the units attractive pricing, the lightweight structure and compact volumetric size once packaged in its semi assembled, modular format also allow for substantial savings during the transport phase of the project, thus making the option even more attractive to both prospective local and export based clientele.
