

Wan-Ifra joins the Washington Post Press Freedom Partnership

World Association of News Publishers, Wan-Ifra, has joined the Washington Post Press Freedom Partnership, a public service initiative from The Post to promote press freedom globally. The Partnership also announced Aspen Institute's Aspen Digital program, as its first supporting partner to help elevate the work of the Partnership to key stakeholders working to expand protections for journalists around the world.

Wan-Ifra and Aspen Digital join a global group of eight partner organisations, including Committee to Protect Journalists, International Press Institute, International Women's Media Foundation, Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press and Reporters Without Borders.
