

iBurst implements ADCO

Wireless broadband provider iBurst is the first South African broadband operator to implement Additional Data Carry Over (ADCO). This enables customers to carry over the unused portions of their monthly data top-up bundles to the following month. ADCO is available immediately meaning all unused additional data bought in June 2006 will be carried over until the end of July. "We're listening to our customers to determine how to provide a better deal for them and South African broadband customers in general," said Thami Mtshali, CEO of iBurst.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>