

Child obesity fuelled by unscrupulous Internet marketing

The International Obesity Taskforce has found that various Internet sites attract children with advertising games and bypass the stricter advertising standards in traditional media with respect to food and beverage marketing, reports IOL Technology. For more, click here.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>