

67 iLearn subscriptions up for grabs this Mandela Day

With unemployment figures reaching an alarming 30.1% in the first quarter of 2020, Richard Rayne, MD of accredited digital learning solutions provider iLearn, believes more must be done to strengthen our workforce and aid career development and business growth... and that the answer lies in digital learning. Microlearning courses are bite-sized skills modules, delivered online, that immediately boost productivity in the workplace. These courses increase competence in a chosen category over a short period of time and can be accessed anytime, anywhere. As the country observes Mandela Day this Saturday, iLearn will demonstrate its commitment to eradicate unemployment by giving away 67 subscriptions to over 670 online, microlearning courses to individuals or businesses in need of skills development.
