Automation Anywhere expands to Africa

Automation Anywhere, a developer of Robotic Process Automation (RPA) software, announced the expansion of its operations in Africa and (Rest of the World) ROW countries, with plans to open an office in Johannesburg, South Africa.

To lead the company's expansion, Sriram Narayanan has been appointed regional sales director and will spearhead operations to deliver value to customers, build a strong team of local talent and drive innovation.

"Demand for intelligent automation continues to grow globally and we have witnessed a strong business need for our offerings in Africa, and across South Asia, the Russian Federation, Turkey and Israel," said Milan Sheth, executive vice president for IMEA, Automation Anywhere.
