

Quicket.io relaunches PassWallet

Following the recent acquisition of the mobile wallet app PassWallet, Software-as-a-Service company Quicket.io relaunched the mobile app. The Munich-based startup has taken an important step towards opening up a new channel of distribution for ancillary air travel services, lifting the existing wallet technology to a new stage with dynamic wallet items. Airlines, for example, now are not only able to update tickets and boarding passes as needed, but also to offer upgrades, meals and other services to their passengers directly from within the app.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>