Dr Brenda Kubheka

Welcoming the new board appointments, Jacqui Stewart, CEO of Cohsasa said: “I am absolutely delighted to have two such consummate professionals join the Cohsasa board. They bring a wealth of experience and expertise to complement the other directors.”

Newly appointed chairperson of Cohsasa, Mr Nhlanhla Nene, also welcomed the new appointments. “On behalf of the board of Cohsasa, I am pleased to welcome Dr Kubheka and Dr Litlhakanyane as new directors and thank them for being available to serve the organisation in its mission to support and promote quality health services. Their experience and passion in the sector will add tremendous value to Cohsasa’s strategic objective into the future.”

Dr Kubheka, founder and managing director of Health IQ Consulting and a founder of Matched Media is a well-rounded healthcare, ethics and health services strengthening professional. She has worked in both the private and public sectors in South Africa and has a wealth of experience and knowledge in health service management, managed healthcare, public health, and healthcare ethics.

She began her career as an intern at Madadeni Provincial Hospital in KwaZulu-Natal and worked her way up the public sector healthcare ladder to be appointed as chief director of the Mpumalanga Department of Health.

However, interspersed with her work in the public sector, she was a medical advisor and senior operations manager for hospital and pathology benefit management for Medscheme Holdings. She also trained as a surveyor for Cohsasa and lectured at Monash University (SA), University of Pretoria and the University of the Witwatersrand in health topics.

Her work experience includes occupying roles of a clinician, health services standards assessor, advisor consultant, mentor, and entrepreneur, and working as a senior manager in managed healthcare, and an executive leader in provincial health services. She also serves in the HPCSA's professional conduct committee.

Dr Kubheka's diverse experiences and qualifications in medicine, business, media and policy have enabled her to engage locally and globally on these issues.

She is also a researcher with a special interest in patient safety, digital medicine, social justice, and bioethics. She has published opinion pieces and academic papers internationally and is considered a thought leader in issues relevant to the health profession, national agenda and global health issues.

Says Dr Kubheka: "As a health professional who has experienced healthcare as a patient, leader and an entrepreneur, and a health justice advocate, I bring a unique blend of experience and perspectives to my role as a board member of Cohsasa in the context of African healthcare. I will play a pivotal role in repositioning and fostering the growth of the organisation by providing strategic direction, mobilising partnerships and promoting innovation while ensuring accountability to support a sustainable trajectory towards success. "I seek to forge collaborations that not only reposition the organisation but also create a lasting impact on the landscape of healthcare quality improvement in Southern Africa."

Dr Victor Litlhakanyane

Dr Victor Letsoejane Litlhakanyane is a radiation oncologist and has been a leader, in both public and private sectors, in healthcare on the African continent for more than 26 years.
