

Herald bought out by opposition

A Zimbabwean opposition supporter drove through Mutare, the country's third largest centre, on Saturday, buying all the copies of the State-owned Herald newspaper that he could, allegedly trying to stop the Zimbabwean Governments propaganda from getting to readers. He was arrested by police, who were unsure what to charge him with, till an MDC parliamentarian intervened, arguing that it wasn't an offence to buy many copies of a newspaper.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>